

Dr. Wayne Rawlins

Senior Clinical Advisor, WellSpark Health

Dr. Wayne Rawlins steers the medical foundation of WellSpark Health. He is a leading immunization expert who spent his career partnering with national organizations to promote health and wellness. At WellSpark, he is responsible for health, prevention and wellbeing strategy, and value demonstration.

Dr. Rawlins previously served as the Vice President and Chief Medical Officer at ConnectiCare and served in senior clinical leadership positions at a large national health insurer. Before that, he led efforts to address health disparities in underserved populations for Aetna/CVS Health and has served on several national organizations addressing health equity. He received his medical degree from the University of Connecticut, completed an internal medicine residency and chief residency at the University of Rochester, and received an M.B.A. from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Dr. Rawlins is board-certified in internal medicine and has treated patients in a primary care practice for over a decade.

Speaking topics

Overview of WellSpark Health

Healthcare/medical issues and trends

Health equity and resolving health disparities in the workplace

How public health impacts employers and employees

Addressing social determinants of health

Chronic disease management and WellSpark's role to address this in the workplace

Diabetes disease distress vs depression

Vaccinations and vaccine hesitancy

Diversity, equity, and inclusion efforts in the workplace

Diseases and the COVID-19 pandemic

Book and follow

wrawlins@wellsparkhealth.com

<https://bit.ly/3NT5hZ8>